Seattle band Shake Some Action! returns in 2022 with Wide Awake, a sign-of-the-times LP recorded remotely with band members never setting foot in the same studio at the same time, communicating via email and dropbox from the east to the west of greater Seattle and back again. You'd never know it – they sound like a driving band in fine form, as they have their entire career.

You'll hear their trademark Rickenbacker janglepop on Wide Awake alongside the psych rock of Angel of Night and on the closer Neurotic Psychotic, ferocious proto punk.

From sharing the stage with fellow Seattle acts Fleet Foxes and Macklemore to hearing their songs on Saturday Night Live, the Voice and the Daily Show, 15 years in the band is showing no sign of slowing down.

*suggested

"Shake Some Action! make sun-kissed Rickenbacker-rock that continues the tradition of the great power pop forbearers like the Kinks and Big Star, along with the jangle pop pioneers of the '80s like R.E.M. and the Feelies. The exclamation point amended to the name bears weight as well – their sound takes their influences' jangly past and brings it into a caffeinated now, with high energy records and performances." "Know this band. Listen to this band." – John Richards, Seattle Sound/KEXP
